MOTORIST HURT TRYING TO FLEE AFTER ACCIDENT

Car Driven by Paul Le Roy Fletcher, Phila., Crashes Into Pole

SENTENCED TO JAIL Private A. J. Liebergall Chases Fugitives for Several Miles

Attempting to flee from the scene of an accident, a 25-year-old motorist was injured Saturday afternoon during a chase through the outskirts of Morrisville.

Speeding over the Old Ferry Road, an auto driven by Paul Le Roy Fletcher, of Philadelphia, struck a pole at Overton avenue and turned over. The car caught fire and was wrecked before firemen from Union and Capitol View Companies could reach the scene.

Fletcher was arrested by Private A. J. Liebergall, of the Pennsylvania State Motor Patrol, who had pursued him for several miles through Lower Merion Township, Saturday night. Fletcher was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Neal Nolan in Morrisville and in lieu of a $50 fine, he was sentenced to serve 25 days in the Bucks County Jail at Doylestown.

He was charged with reckless driving, speeding, and failing to possess either an owner's card or an operator's license. The car was owned by Jack Harmon, of Wilmington, Del., who told police that he had not given Fletcher permission to use his machine.

Fletcher suffered cuts and bruises and was hurried to Mercer Hospital, Trenton, for treatment by Chief of Police Albert Cooper. Later, he was arraigned.

According to Private Liebergall, Fletcher sideswiped the car of Bernard Peyton, of Pretty Brook Road, Princeton, and then fled. Peyton drove to Lincoln Point where the officer was stationed and informed him of what had occurred.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

About the Independence Day Celebration program for this year? Do you favor having the same general character of program as in previous years, even if the cost of a fireworks display is considerably higher?

Do you favor the staging of a historical pageant by professional actors in a theatre, giving three or four shows on July 4th?

Do you favor the staging of a historical pageant by professional actors in the open, with flood light illumination?

Write to the Courier and give the committee your ideas. Do it now, as the committee will meet Thursday night to consider the program.

One vessel, the Predsednik Kopatjik, had steamed down the bay when the Coast Guard apparently received word to act and in three hours she slowly steamed back up the bay and dropped anchor off Staten Island.

The Netti and Soreca were boarded at their docks. There was no immediate indication of the type of custody under which the boats were placed or whether it was the same type established in the case of seized Axis ships.

SEEK YOUR OPINION ON TYPE OF CELEBRATION

Independence Day Celebration Committee Anxious For Suggestions

EXPRESS YOUR WISHES

What is your idea of the proper kind of a program for the celebration of July 4th in Bristol in 1941? This is what members of the Independence Day Celebration Committee for Bristol and All the Adjacent Communities want to know. Will you tell them? Don't sit idly by and think that someone else will attend to the matter. Your opinion is wanted.

Some undoubtedly are going to pay no attention to the appeal of the committee. Then if the program is not what they think it should have been, they are going to criticize.

The committee is considering the conditions as they exist in the world at large today. The committee realizes that an Americanism program would be particularly appropriate at this time, yet just what form should it take?

Here is an opportunity for individuals and organizations to express themselves in giving their views to the committee. Write your opinions to the Courier. Your signature will be withheld from publication, if desired, and if it is your wish your letter will not be published but handed to the committee for consideration.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENI
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

A Four-Month Vacancy

WASHINGTON, May 3. PERHAPS no great harm has been done by the President's failure to fill the vacancy on the Supreme Bench caused by the retirement on January 29 of Mr. Justice James McReynolds. Certainly this is true from the standpoint of the President himself.

—O—
THERE is now on the court a majority of five, composed of tried and tested New Dealers whose political views are practically identical, who almost always vote as a unit and appear to follow the lead of Mr. Justice Felix Frankfurter. Unless great injustice is done him by current report, Mr. Frankfurter still continues his pre-court custom of conferring with the President, and others, on political and administrative matters not even remotely connected with the high judicial position which he occupies.

—O—
AT the recent Gridiron dinner, at which he was a guest, there was a rather savage skewer based on the alleged tendency of Mr. Frankfurter to be the power behind the White House and to dictate to the departments. Some of his friends insisted that he enjoyed this burlesque, though it is difficult indeed to believe it. At any rate, it did portray in a rather gross way the belief of a good many people here that Mr. Frankfurter is doing a lot of things besides interpreting the Constitution and construing the Federal statutes.

—O—
THIS may or may not be true, but certainly it does seem true that he has taken charge of the Supreme Court and has wielded behind him the other four New Deal justices, who, when it comes to the interpretation of New Deal laws of

Roses In Bloom?

(By "The Stroller")

A resident of Jefferson avenue, who prides himself on planting flowers on the sidewalk, looking over his pet hobby discovered in the center of his garden, four beautiful roses, when he paid his early morning visit to his brick "greenhouse."

They were not there the night before, so he naturally felt that a miracle had happened. Through his mind ran visions of parked cars in the vicinity bringing crowds to see this most wonderful event. Some of his neighbors stopped to view this miraculous sight, and then the crowds began to gather. The owner would sell cuttings from the lovely bushes and haul in a fortune. Somebody called the police and in a few seconds the arm of the law appeared. He gave the "bushes" the once-over, smiled and began chasing the crowd.

Yes, brother, you guessed rightly, the miracle was an empty whiskey bottle, and the brand? It's your guess.

BRISTOL STUDENT NURSE REWARDED FOR SAVING LIFE

Miss Doris VanSciver Risked Life To Save That of A Bristol Woman

GIVEN WRIST WATCH

Held Onto Patient Outside Window Until Human Chain Was Formed

As a reward for being courageous, trustworthy and dependable, a Bristol student nurse was honored for saving the life of a Bristol woman, when commencement exercises of Hahnemann Hospital were held in Philadelphia on Thursday evening.

The one so honored is Miss Doris VanSciver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred VanSciver, Spruce street, a student nurse at that institution.

The presentation of a gold wrist watch, suitably inscribed, came as a complete surprise to Miss VanSciver, who was asked to go to the platform, during the course of the exercises.

The inscription on the watch bears the words "Courageous, Trustworthy, and Dependable."

It was on March 12th that a Bristol woman, Mrs. Catherine Companaro, of Elm street, a patient in the Hahnemann Hospital, walked from her bed, and climbed to a precarious perch outside a fifth floor window ledge. Miss VanSciver, who was on duty at the time, grabbed the woman about the legs as the patient allegedly threatened to jump. Miss VanSciver held on to her charge until another nurse and an orderly arrived. Forming a human chain they were finally able to get the woman back into the room and to bed.

Police, meanwhile, had been attracted by the screams of women in the ward.

Three Groups To Raise Funds For A Respirator

American Legion Auxiliary members, at a meeting in Bracken Post home, Friday evening, decided to co-operate with members of Catholic Daughters of America and with Lily Lodge of Rebokas, in raising funds to purchase a respirator for use by Bristol Blood Donors' Association. Mrs. Arthur Zug was the presiding officer. Poppies were distributed to members, the same to be sold during the Memorial season for benefit of invalid veterans. Mrs. Marvel Durham is chairman of the poppy committee.

A number of mothers were present, this being a Mother's Day meeting. When the group adjourned to the second floor, each was met at the entrance of the social hall by a Junior Auxiliary member, who presented a pink carnation to each attendant. Mrs. Elizabeth Belker and Mrs. H. Bolton, Gold Star mothers, were each given an old-fashioned, nose-gay, presented by juniors, who were attired in old-fashioned costumes. The juniors also staged a tableau.

Tea and cookies were served. Nomination and election of officers will occur in June.

Firemen Kept Active During Past Week-End

Bristol Consolidated Fire Department received three calls during the week-end. The first call was received Saturday night at about 10.30 when a small outbuilding at Harriman Park was afire.

The second call was yesterday afternoon at about six o'clock, when a call was received that a small building on the rear of the property of George Garretson, Edgely avenue, Edgely, was discovered afire by Mr. Ritter, who was passing along Edgely avenue at the time. Mr. Ritter advised the Garretsons of the blaze.

In the building next to the one which was afire there were small storage tanks with gasoline and oil in them.

Headley Manor Fire Company was at the scene and went into service. Last night, at about nine o'clock, Bristol Consolidated Department was informed that the field opposite the Manhattan Soap plant was burning. Chief Hagerman responded in the chief's car. The apparatus did not respond.

THE NUTRITION FRONT

Each day brings more evidence that Americans are becoming increasingly nutrition conscious. Reports from England on the efficacy of vitamin pills to strengthen nerve resistance to the war, frequent pleas by medical and dietary experts in this country who urge balanced diets, and the President's recent announcement that he was calling a three-day nutrition conference in Washington this month, are signs of food value awareness.

The latest advice on the matter is given by Dr. Russell M. Wilder of the Mayo Clinic, who is the nutritional expert of the National Research Council. He says that millions of Americans are living below the nutrition border line. He does not mean they do not get enough to eat, but he points out that they do not consume enough proper food to get the right vitamin supply.

The average American diet, for example, contains only about a third as much thiamin (vitamin B-1) as in Civil War times, and a Mayo Clinic experiment clearly showed that deficiency of this substance may lead to an individual's moroseness, irritability, mental depression, and even physical slovenliness.

Perhaps no group of men is under heavier nervous tension today than the Royal Air Force. Some of its members have had dreadful breakdowns, although nervous crackups by no means are unusual in any warring organization, and in these times of bombing attacks on civilians the malady attacks a broader field than in previous wars. But with particular reference to the air force the use of concentrated thiamin has had measurable success as a nerve stabilizer.

Because it is difficult to make persons take pills, Dr. Wilder suggests the enrichment of foods with desired vitamins while they are being processed. He also urges the wider distribution of citrus fruit and tomatoes, and he sings the praises of a "cocktail" composed of skimmed milk and sugar.

The war has brought on this nutrition consciousness. Many persons will hesitate to admit that anything good can come out of a war, but in this instance war has prompted various plans that need not end with peace. It has been thus in every war in the past. Some day Americans may guardedly thank the war for forcing them to become a less jittery people.

UNREPATRIATED 1,500

Representatives of the State Department at Washington who made a count of Americans still remaining in occupied France have discovered that Americans are not prone to put distance between themselves and trouble.

Washington all but ordered Americans living in the occupied zone of Paris and Northern France to get out on several occasions. Living has been difficult there. In the course of time it was assured that virtually all of these American visitors had gotten out. The number remaining was thought to be not more than 200.

Now it develops there are 1,500 Americans still holding the fort in Nazi-controlled France. Few of them say they are contemplating a return to America. Food may be scarce and life day by day hard, but they are not disposed to let a thing like war disturb them.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Aug. 7, 1879. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The old flag staff at the foot of Mill street, which withstood the blasts of many a storm, finally succumbed to the inevitable on Monday afternoon. It was struck by lightning during a thunder storm, and split from top to bottom, splinters flying from it in all directions. William Allen sitting on the steps of the meat shop next to the Whitmore House, was stunned and knocked over by the shock, but was not injured. People in that vicinity were considerably alarmed for fear the mast would fall, and there were rumors abroad of some very fast time having been made out of the back doors of the stores and shops in that neighborhood. To prevent damage by the staff falling, it was cut down and nothing but the stump now remains. The staff was erected in 1861, being towed up by Captain Porter, who then commanded the old tow boat Delaware.

Capt. H. Clay Beatty, whose body now reposes in the Episcopal graveyard, delivered the speech, and other appropriate ceremonies occurred. . . .

The Magoffin property has been purchased by Dr. George D. Kirk. The property is a very desirable one, being in a good location along the river bank.

Jonathan Wright has received the contract for rough-casting school house No. 1.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Ann Reeves, relict of the late Elisha Reeves, took place on Sunday last from the residence of her son-in-law,

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

"Surely you must realize that the old order is tottering—is, en fin, doomed?" Nadia continued.

The tall American's laugh was quite harsh. "No, I don't; but, aside from that, I don't like red Russia. I don't think the way you people tortured poor La Tour before they shot him was very sporting."

"Sporting? Bah!" Nadia Stefan gestured violently with that pistol which looked incongruous in her small hand. "You take all this as a game? Well, it is not. We in Russia are in earnest; our success means life or death; for us there is nothing in the world but the triumph of Communism."

"In other words you believe that the end justifies the means?" North demanded, and with his handkerchief held awkwardly out before him, sank onto the arm of a chair. "Of course the end justifies the means," Josef put in, fixing the prisoner with baleful, staring eyes. "The death of every third person in the world would justify the ultimate triumph of Marxism."

"I can't agree with you," North observed patiently. "And now, mademoiselle, you can't blame me if I'm a bit curious as to what's next on the program?"

While Nadia meditated, North looked about to make a mental photograph of the room. It was well furnished—very well furnished in fact, and in excellent taste.

There were, moreover, several very decent Chinese dishes scattered about. And yonder was that wide modernistic desk he had noted on entering. That desk—would he ever probe its possibilities?

"If you make no trouble you will be taken upstairs," Nadia announced, "and locked in a little room, especially prepared for guests like you. If you stay quiet, you will be released in a few days, but if you prove troublesome—"

"Ah, now you become interesting!" North manufactured a tight smile, but at the same time he asked himself why she did not have him shot, and off her hands. She must have known it was the logical, the safest thing for her to do. Why did she look at him so intently?

"If you prove troublesome, it will simply be a case of sayo-nara, you know. Good-bye."

Over him burst a great dazzling hope, and he fixed on her a lingering and inscrutable look. Sure enough—the faintest tinge of color crept into her cheeks as she got to her feet and passed the pistol over to her massive companion, before vanishing across the wide gray rug towards him.

"Look at me," she invited, with what seemed like natural simplicity. "I wish everything in this affair were as easy as that," he replied and, with frank curiosity, studied her visage in detail.

The perfect oval of her face loomed a little nearer, and he became aware of a faint perfume that stirred in him senses he thought he had long since had completely under control. To his dismay, he suddenly found himself wondering just why he had ever opposed this exquisite creature's wishes? The realization was a distinct and sobering shock.

What! Was he, Hugh North, doubting his own self-control after all these years? He tried to tear his eyes away, but instead found fascination in trying to read the thoughts behind Nadia Stefan's delicate and quite composed features. Her red lips became curved into a slow smile, and he guessed that she was luxuriating in the knowledge of her ascendancy over him!

"You will go upstairs with Josef, no?" she suggested. "I could have you killed at once, mon Capitaine, and I—should. He seemed to detect a confusion in her thoughts.

FASHION PARADE

By Max Factor, Jr.

(Famous Hollywood Make-Up Specialist Writing For I. N. S.)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Are your facial features predominantly soft or sharp ones?

If they are softly curvaceous, along Loretta Young or Betty Grable lines, you possess the facial contours which are generally deemed the most beautiful.

Sharp features do not enjoy this high popular regard. Severely straight feature lines, particularly if these are evident in an up-and-down scheme on a more than ordinarily long face, are frequently frowned upon as being somewhat lacking in the desired "soft feminine" effect.

If you possess obviously sharp facial features, and are not happy about this countenance state of affairs, you should investigate the illusory corrections which may be made with make-up.

Make-up, for example, can tone down the harshness of a too-pointed chin line. An application of rouge on the tip of the chin, blended to a subtle

An All-Day Dish

By Frances Lee Barton

THE recipe below describes a corned beef loaf that certainly fits into the schedule of a busy day.

It's a good main-course dish for dinner, an excellent lunch-box dainty and just the thing for that bite before bed or an after-bridge luncheon. Best of all, it is easy to make and far from expensive.

Corned Beef Loaf

1 package lemon-flavored gelatin; 1 pint hot beef stock or 1 pint hot water and 4 bouillon cubes; 2 tablespoons vinegar; 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce; 3 cups finely chopped cooked corned beef; dash of cayenne; 1 tablespoon scraped onion; 2 tablespoons prepared mustard; 2 tablespoons horse-radish.

Dissolve gelatin in hot stock. Add vinegar and Worcestershire sauce. Chill. Combine remaining ingredients. When gelatin is slightly thickened, fold in corned beef mixture. Turn into loaf pan. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serve in slices. Serves 8 to 10.

shadow, can greatly minimize the appearance of such a feature. The blending of this rouge application is especially important. If blending is overlooked, the sharp chin can be even more obvious than before.

The correct blending of eyeshadow and rouge is also important to the successful minimizing of sharp feature lines. Sharply defined border lines on the application of either of these items will accentuate feature sharpness.

Lipstick applications, however, should have sharp, clear border lines. The sharply-featured woman should avoid lipstick patterns which offer any straightness in their outline. Definitely curved lipstick patterns are much more flattering to her appearance.

Eyebrows plucked to a thin, sharp line tend to further any natural severity of feature contours. Cultivate full-grown brows in a natural arch. They increase the "feminine softness" effect for the face.

The way you wear your hair has a great deal to do with whether your facial features are made to appear softer or sharper.

Rothermel-Vornhold Wedding
Witnessed by Many Guests

HULMEVILLE, May 5—At a marriage ceremony witnessed by a large company in Neshaminy Methodist Church on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, Miss Ethel I. Vornhold, granddaughter of Mrs. William Vornhold, became the bride of Mr. Paul C. Rothermel, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Rothermel, of Yardley. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Wilmer E. Harkness.

Attending the former Miss Vornhold as matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Theodore Schneider, Philadelphia; and the bridesmaids were Miss Kay Rothermel, Yardley, a sister of the groom; and Mrs. Robert Neill, Jr., of Bristol. Little Connie Mather, of Langhorne, was the flower girl.

Mr. Robert Neill, Jr., Bristol, was groomsmen for the occasion; and the ushers were inclusive of: Mr. Frederick Bebbington, of Yardley; and Mr. Charles Vornhold, Hulmeville, a cousin of the bride.

Entering the edifice to the music of the wedding march by Lohengrin, played by Miss Clara L. Illick, the bride was accompanied by her uncle, Mr. Raymond Vornhold, who gave her in marriage. She was attractively gowned in white net with trim of lace over a foundation of satin. The neckline was sweet-heart shaped, and the gown featured long, detachable sleeves, and a lengthy train. From a heart-shaped tulle veil of tulle, which extended to the end of her train. The bride's muf bouquet was fashioned of gardenias and white sweet-peas.

Mrs. Schneider, the matron of honor, selected a gown of poudre blue taffeta. Her floral head-dress with face-veil attached, matched her gown; and she carried a colonial bouquet of var-colored roses. Her slippers were of silver. Mrs. Neill and Miss Rothermel, the bridesmaids, wore gowns patterned alike, but in different color tones. Mrs. Neill wore pink, and Miss Rothermel, aqua. The costumes of French organdie were floor-length. Their floral head-dresses and face veils matched the respective gowns; and each maid carried a colonial-style bouquet of mixed roses, and wore silver slippers.

Little Connie Mather, the flower girl, wore a dainty dress of yellow organdie, it having a hoop skirt. In a basket which she carried were yellow daisies; and her tiny hat matched her dress.

The vocalist for the ceremony was Miss Adeline E. Reetz, whose offerings were "Because" and "I Love You Truly." Prior to the ceremony, Miss Illick included in an organ recital, "O Promise Me," "At Dawning," "One Fleeting Hour," and "Before the Altar."

A reception at Weirman's Grill, Trenton, N. J., followed at 3:30 o'clock, with covers arranged for 90 guests.

Mr. Rothermel and his bride then left for a three-day visit in Washington, D. C. They will make their home with the groom's parents in Yardley. The former Miss Vornhold is a

FOOD MARKET

Advice-

ALTHOUGH Friday has been traditionally regarded as a day for special values on fish, the housewife will find that on Tuesday the markets now offer the same wide selection at special prices. That's because one of the largest of food chains is cooperating with the Department of Markets in a new campaign to popularize fish on the weekly menus, thereby reducing overhead charges and consequently prices.

Production on most fresh water fish is noticeably increased this week owing to the present warm weather. Haddock, scrod, market cod and steak cod are all plentiful and very modestly priced. Fresh mackerel is arriving in limited quantities, and if mild weather continues, production will increase. Considerable quantities of shad are being produced, and very reasonable prices prevail. Among the other low priced fish from which to choose are bass, porgies, flounders and yellowtails. This week marks the first of the regular oyster season until September.

In the Boston area, there is a good supply of Canadian smelts available. Lobsters are plentiful and are low in price. Other specials are flounders, haddock and cod fillets.

Steaks Reasonable

Veal this week is fairly reasonable, and pork shows slight advances in price, particularly in smoked varieties. Best meat buys of the week are beef, with specials for the week-end including beef steaks, boneless chuck pot roast and rib roast. Legs of lamb are reasonable, and rib and shoulder chops are moderately priced. Broilers and fryers, ducklings and turkeys are reasonable and are being offered as week-end specials.

West coast and southern vegetables and fruits continue to pour into the markets. Even such vegetables as asparagus are slightly lower in price. Fresh string beans are more plentiful, and are another special buy. Other reasonably priced items are beets, carrots, celery, new cabbage and spinach.

Fruits, too, are unlimited as to selection. Oranges are especially attractive in price this week as this popular fruit is being featured in a ten day National Citrus Fruit Drive. Apples, bananas, grapefruit and pineapples are additional budget-priced fruits.

Based on attractively priced items over the week-end, the following menu is suggested for Sunday dinner:

Orange and Grapefruit Cup
Lamb Chops in Mushroom Sauce
Buttered New Potatoes
Harvard Beets
Mixed Green Salad
Chocolate Russian Cream
Tea or Coffee

Why Plans Go into the Waste-basket!

When a whole new industry which expects to employ 10,000 workers decides to move into a rural section where the nearest town has less than 3,000 population—there's a whale of a job for a lot of folks!

And it makes telephone problems, too!

Plans for normal telephone growth must go into the waste-basket. New plans must be made in a hurry. Equipment in the central office must be expanded. A complete telephone system for the new factory must be provided.

More telephones must be placed in hundreds of new homes and new stores. Cable to provide circuits for more out-of-town calls must be constructed. New operators hired and trained to handle the thousands of calls.

This is happening here in Pennsylvania—in Bucks County—where a huge bomber assembly plant is going up. And in other parts of the State, too, booming towns, new factories, roaring activity in every industry and business are making tremendous demands for telephone service.

Today this company is engaged in an all-out drive of manpower, materials and money—to keep Bell telephone service up to the demands of Pennsylvania's biggest job.

TWILIGHT BASEBALL TO OPEN SEASON TONIGHT IN BRISTOL

St. Ann's and Auto Boys To Be Opponents On The Leedom Field

IF WEATHER PERMITS

Diamond Nine To Meet The Rohm & Haas Nine At Maple Beach

Play ball! These two words which will be barked by the umpires at the Leedom and Maple Beach ball diamond will start Bristol off to another season of twilight baseball and mark the opening of the second season of the combined Bristol Twilight and Bristol Suburban Leagues.

On Leedom's field, the opposing teams will be St. Ann's and the Auto Boys, both new entries in the loop. While on the Maple Beach diamond, the Diamond nine will meet the Rohm and Haas nine.

On the Leedom's diamond, a brief ceremony will take place with President of the League, Paul Voltz, tossing out the first ball. Vice-president, Joseph A. Diamanti will throw out the first ball on the Maple Beach field.

Managed by Ray Pico, it will be the first St. Ann's ball team in the past three years. The Wood street organization has decided to go back into sports in a big way and is starting out with a young team which may cause plenty of trouble to the clubs of last season.

For hurling, Pico has Paul Cervellero, Tony Rotundo, and Mike DeLisi, the latter to do mostly reserve work. Cervellero formerly pitched for Rohm and Haas, having a fine season two years ago but doing little work last season. Rotundo pitched for Bristol High and the Legion team. DeLisi will also be used as a utility player, being able to fill almost any position except catching.

Tony Angelo who did his catching for Diamond last season will be the receiver for the Purple and Gold while at first base will be Jimmy Angelini, a newcomer in town. Bert Barbetta will be at the Keystone base with shortstop being filled by Rocco Sogolli. Nick Palumbo, one of the sweetest infielders of "Henny" Morgan's Croydon team of last season, will be at third base.

The outfield will have "Clem" Peterpaul and "Chick" DeAngelo, both former Bristol high players, while the other post will be a toss-up among Bert Avella, Joe Ciarella, Tony Palumbo, and Saverio Pappalardo.

Henny Morgan, who is managing the Auto Boys team, lost most of his stars of the Croydon team of last season but has picked an array of players which is certain to cause trouble. Morgan's combination of players is mostly from the Y. M. A. and St. Luke's teams.

Morgan will be short of hurlers with his main moundsmen being the colored Elijah Bragg and Linford Wolvin who did the pitching for St. Luke's last season. "Jack" McCue will be the backstop of the team. Buck Friel may be assigned first base with Joie Hoffman doing the second sacker's job. Chuck Klein will be at shortstop and Kratz or Dougherty at third base. The outfield will be picked from: Strickler, Mulligan, Johnson, Joe Cahall and Lloyd McGinley. "Lou" Beisel will be held in reserve for catching or outfield duty.

On paper, Rohm and Haas appears to be the outstanding club of the circuit. The club is being managed by Freddie Oppman whose first move was to grab his brother Wally for a shortstop. It was Wally's work on the field and with the stick that led the Croydon team to the playoffs and championship. Freddie himself does the third base work.

For hill work, Oppman has the best staff available. He has "Eddie" Sullivan, Bill Gallagher, Hern Puma, and Wils Holland. Jesse Vincent does the receiving. Charlie Locke covets the first base territory with Larry David at second. In the outfield, Oppman has the choice of Joe Roe, the Ritter brothers, Timmy Harrison, Kermit Poescher, and Swope.

For his Diamond team, Joe Diamanti has put four players out of the group that carried him to the regular season's championship. These four are: Frank Balaz, Joe Fletcher, Lefty Seibold, and Lefty Hubach.

Around these four men, Manager Diamanti expects to mould the nine which will represent his club on the field. He has signed a group of youngsters with whom he hopes to build a team. The only experienced new player he has is Johnny Stallone. His boys are: William Abate, Jimmy Kelly, William Salerno, Howard Kelly, Jimmy Dugan, Tony Biancosino, Anthony Favoroso.

Both games are scheduled to start promptly at 6.30 o'clock.

CORRECTION

In the list of players signed with the teams of the Bristol Suburban League, the name of Bert Barbetta was omitted from the St. Ann's lineup.

BUCKS BULL AND COWS NATIONALLY RECOGNIZED

Guernsey Bull In Phillip W. Smith Herd, New Hope, Has Fine Record

RECORDS PRESENTED

PETERSBOROUGH, N. H., May 5—A Guernsey bull, Evergreen's Hopeful Furor 248512, bred and owned by Phillip W. Smith, New Hope, Pa., has just won national recognition. This bull, having five daughters which have made creditable official records, has been entered in the Advanced Register of The American Guernsey Cattle Club. Evergreen's Hopeful Furor 248512, will be known hereafter as an Advanced Register sire. Only Guernseys which meet high production requirements are eligible for entry. The five daughters which have completed official records are Evergreen Furor's Bess 583783, Evergreen Furor's Fidella 582796, Evergreen Furor's Flora 577-986, Evergreen's Hopemore Gaby 606566, and Evergreen's Furor's Rillena 606565.

A new record, exceeding the average of the Guernsey breed for her age and class has just been completed by a 2½-year-old cow, Evergreen Furor's Rillena 606565, tested and owned by Mr. Smith. Her official record supervised by the Pennsylvania State College and announced by the American Guernsey Cattle Club is 8421.2 pounds of milk and 441.1 pounds of butter fat, class FFF.

Two cows in the herd of Theodore H. Kleinhoff, Doylestown, Pa., have completed official records in the Herd Improvement Division qualifying them for admission to the Advanced Register of The American Guernsey Cattle Club, according to Karl B. finance, Roland W. Porter; refugee housing, W. Richardson Blair, and planning and zoning, no appointment.

While there have been no appointments in the employer-employee relationship and planning and zoning committees, Chairman Lewis said that certain citizens are under consideration and appointees will be named later.

He deplored the fact that in one case one member of the defense council has not as yet attended a single meeting.

Chairman Lewis, touching on the defense work begun by the firemen in the county, asserted that the volunteer firemen are way ahead of every other type of organization when it comes to making preparations and plans for carrying out a defense program.

Executive Secretary Woolley, who made a trip to Washington, D. C., in order to confer with housing authorities of the National Defense Council, gave a detailed report on the housing situation in the county.

She mentioned that many townships and borough officials are getting the co-operation of school directors and principals and preparing for the emergency influx industry that the defense program will bring to the county.

A plan, attempting to co-operate and meet with the problems of housing, increased attendance in schools and other phases of changes in population, will be submitted to the local council, and then must go to Washington, D. C., for national approval.

the last seven years, vote with him

(or perhaps it is he who votes with them) with extraordinary consistency. A fine example of this is to be found in Mr. Frankfurter's opinion last week in the Phelps-Dodge case, involving the Wagner Labor Act, which still further pushed the employers under the heels of the professional labor leaders.

IN this somewhat shocking opinion the four other New Dealish justices agreed. The chief justice, Mr. Hughes, and Justice Stone dissented, and Justice Roberts did not concur. Of course, this is a situation which most of the best lawyers in the country regard with extreme distaste and about which a good many citizens are disturbed. But it is highly gratifying to Mr. Roosevelt. He has reduced to fulfillment those justices who disagree with his views of the Constitution and he has a court which can be depended upon to reflect his political philosophy and stand by his legislative experiments.

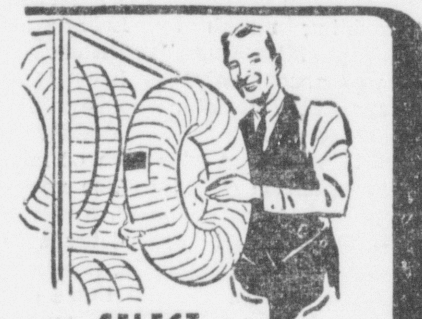

UNDER such circumstances, from his standpoint, there has been no reason for Mr. Roosevelt to bother about filling the existing vacancy on the bench. He has the court where he wanted it, with or without the ninth member. And from the standpoint of the country it makes no difference either, because the President is quite certain to select for the place another political supporter. Nevertheless, the delay is almost unprecedented. It is now going on four months since Justice McReynolds retired. From the beginning there have been two men seriously mentioned in connection with the appointment—Attorney General Robert Jackson and Senator James M. Byrnes, of South Carolina.

YET the President has seemed unable to make up his mind. At times he has been reported as inclined to name Senator Byrnes and hold Mr. Jackson back for the "next vacancy." At other times, his friends say, he has seemed impressed by the argument that he could not afford to take Senator Byrnes out of the Senate because of the weakness of the Senate leadership. There also has been the argument—made very privately by some of the extreme left-wing New Dealers—that Senator Byrnes, while a loyal supporter of the President, is too clear-headed really to believe in the New Deal doctrines and, once on the bench, might very easily tend toward the views of the chief justice.

MOREOVER, he is so persuasive that he might possibly induce one of the less fanatical of the "Frankfurter five" to go along with him. Of course, that is an obviously strained view which comes from certain hectic fellows in their flushed moments. It is a fact, however, that those of the so-called "inner circle" would consider Mr. Jackson very much more "one of us" and naturally prefer him. At this time the best-informed belief seems to be that Senator Byrnes will get the job—and pretty soon at that. There are two reasons for this. One is that last Tuesday Mr. Roosevelt, replying to a South Carolina delegation, said that he expected to make the appointment soon and hoped "South Carolina will not be disappointed."

THIS, of course, was construed as meaning that he expects to name Senator Byrnes. The South Carolinians took it that way. So did Senator Byrnes' colleagues in the Senate who have been urging him on the President. So did the press. The other reason is that some days before the President saw the South Carolinians, Mr. Frankfurter, speaking to a friend of Senator Byrnes, expressed himself as "highly delighted" at the prospect of the Senator coming on the court. He said that the Senator is "just the man we need."
